Dr. Karen Dill

In professional athletics, it is particularly hard to rise to the top because so many specific qualities are necessary for success: drive, dedication, physical ability, and mental toughness, to name a few. The same is true of a good professor. Few people have all of the attributes it takes to become one of those life-changing academic types: sheer intelligence, stamina in doing research, originality and cleverness in the subject area, a captivating personality, enthusiasm in teaching, and that special openness to students that makes them not just a professor, but a friend. Dr. Karen Dill says every day, with a glowing complexion and gigantic grin to back it up, she picked the perfect career. Born and raised in St. Louis, Missouri, she received her Ph.D. in social psychology from the University of Missouri-Columbia. Her dissertation, published in 2000, was on the effects of exposure to violent video games on aggression, and is still the most cited research study on video game violence. To say that Dr. Dill's professional life has been successful since then would be an understatement: she has given expert testimony before Congress twice, spoken by invitation in Chile and South Korea, and written a book, When Fantasy Becomes Reality: The Social Psychology of the Mass Media, which will be available this summer. However, in her students' eyes, these successes place a far second to her personal attributes. Dr. Dill's infectious enthusiasm far surpasses what is required, or even expected, and draws everybody into the lecture in a captivating way. And while she teaches everything in the book, students leave her classes with a little something extra; unique projects, papers, and reading materials help them to delve deep into their own minds and discover what makes them happy in life...as happy as Dr. Dill always is. For instance, instead of a standard exam, Psychology 100 students each present a creative project, and Dr. Dill invites them to her house to do it. She's an outstanding role model who takes a keen interest in her students, and relates to them in the manner of a friend. Her husband of 15 years, Dr. Jay Dill, also teaches psychology at Lenoir-Rhyne, and they have two children, Jason and Regan. She was "Outstanding Woman of the Catawba Valley" by the League of Women Voters in 2008...and her students would definitely agree that she is very outstanding!

Above: Dr. Dill testifies in front of Congress about the effects of video games on violence. Right: With her mother on her first communion.

Background: hometown of St. Louis, Missouri!

Left: Who knew that Dr. Dill was a cheerleader back in the day? Well, it's not impossible to deduce, because she is quite peppy! Right: High school graduation.

Dr. Dill (second from left on the front row) poses with a group of video game experts in South Korea.

Somewhere in time...

Take a look at these two pictures: one of Dr. Dill as a toddler, and the other containing her two children, Regan and Jason. There's more than just a little bit of family resemblance there!

Dr. Dill (the youngest) as a child with her brother and sister.

There's nothing as important as family.

"I can't stress how important it is to love what you do. I love my job...it's perfect for me, I can't imagine doing anything else, and I'm happy."

Giving a talk at the Catholic university in Santiago, Chile in 2007. She returned about a year later to give another talk at the same university.

Family portrait, 1990.

On her wedding day with Dr. Jay Dill on May 22, 1993.

Delving into a new field... acting!

Her career isn't the only thing that has lasted and stayed successful; her 15-year marriage has been a joy beyond all comparison. Dr. Dill's advice? "It may sound simple, but keep a positive regard for your spouse. Quarrels don't end a relationship; if you always remember why you love that person, and never lose sight of that, your marriage will be great." Research also shows that you'll find your spouse more attractive as the years roll by.

and the yearbook staff also dedicates the 2009 HACAWA to...

George Ussery

George proudly holds the 2008 HACAWA

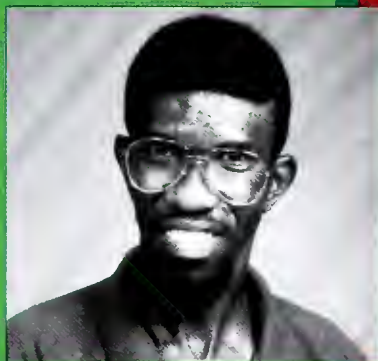

George is undoubtedly the most prolific HACAWA fan of all time. Ask him about any year, and he can tell you what happened!

His job allows him to meet lots and lots of students! Over the 19 years he's been here, George has never forgotten a face. Once you're George's friend... you're George's friend forever.

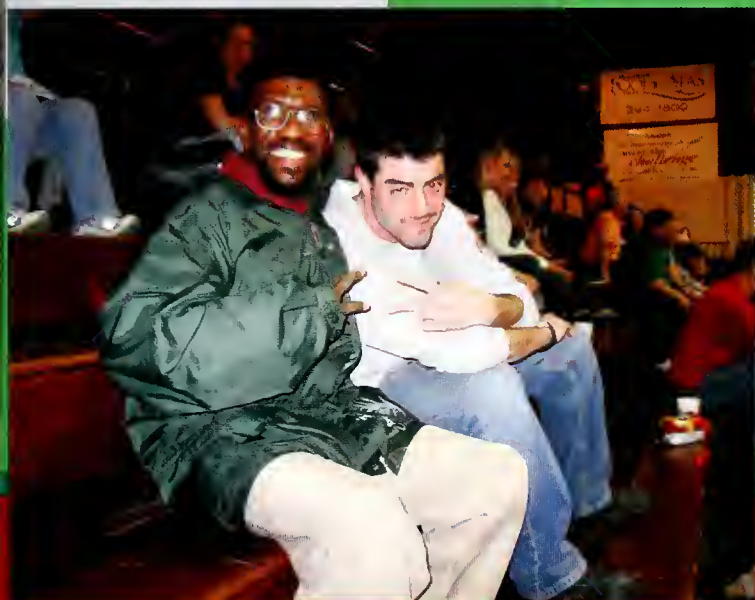

At LRU basketball games, George is truly known as the life of the party. He enthusiastically greets and talks to people...and probably doesn't pay attention to two seconds of the game!

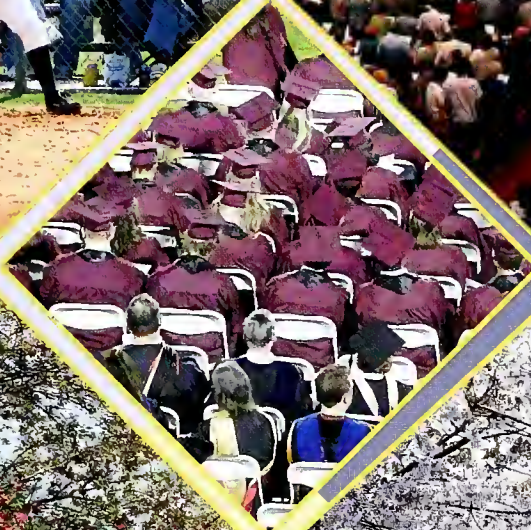

George in 2000

Old Main, the Rhyne Building's predecessor, was built in 1893. Cline Gym, which was across from the Russell House, appeared in 1922. Highland Hall was glorious at its 1909 opening, boasting steam heat, hot and cold baths, and electric lights, with space for 94 occupants...but was torn down in 2007. Think any of these facts can get by George Ussery? Not a chance! George, who works in the cafeteria, may not be a student or a teacher, but at night, he has his own unique studying to do. As the yearbook's greatest fan, George can recall the precise year of any event in the school's history, and pores over every yearbook so he can remember the students' names and address them properly when he sees them. A Hickory native, George graduated from Hickory High School, and began his career at Lenoir-Rhyne in 1990, where he has remained ever since. Any student can find a good and true friend in George, for his genuinely caring nature and great sense of humor are second only to his heart of gold and his morals. There are figures on campus who will soon be forgotten, as well as ones who will live on in our memories...and George is definitely one of the latter.

LR Softball 108

Yet More Silverware...

The Lenoir-Rhyne College Softball Team won the SAC regular season title for the third straight year, going 42-14 overall and 12-2 in the conference. The Lady Bears also placed seven on the 2008 All-South Atlantic Conference Softball Team.

Senior pitcher Meredith O'Connor (Charlotte, N.C./Appalachian State Univ.) was named to the All-SAC First Team and earned SAC-Pitcher-of-the-Year honors for the second straight season. O'Connor was also the statistical champion for most pitching victories (28).

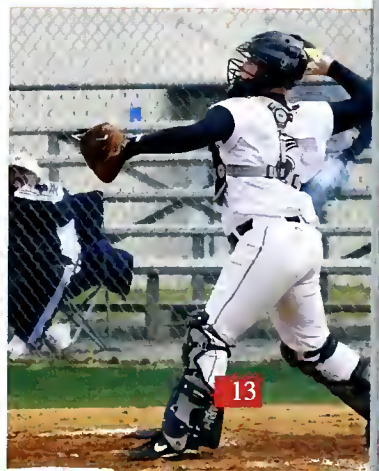

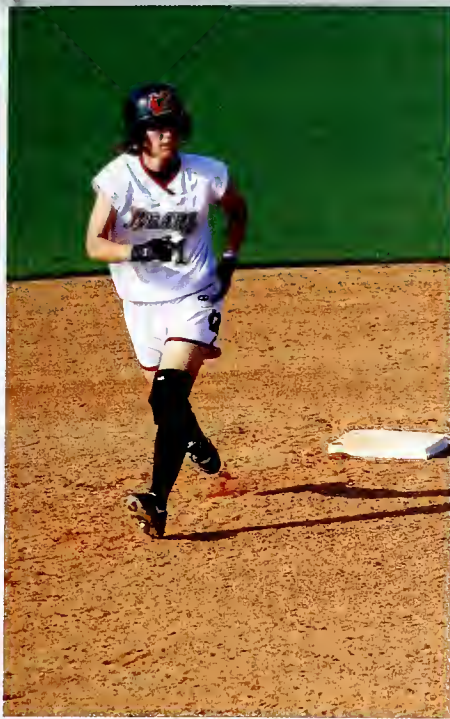

Senior centerfielder Taylor Queen (Conover, N.C./St. Stephens HS) received All-SAC First-Team accolades for the third straight season, making her the first player in L-R history to do so.

The Bears also placed three infielders on the all-league first team. Senior first baseman Leah Krohn (Taylorsville, N.C./Alexander Central HS), junior second baseman Noel Belk (Charlotte, N.C./Queens Univ.) and redshirt freshman shortstop Kat Rivers (Royston, Ga./Franklin County HS) all took home first-team honors.

L-Rs outfield was deemed as best in the conference as well. Along with Queen, sophomore right fielder Brittany Cherry (Myrtle Beach, S.C./Carolina Forest HS) garnered first-team laurels.

Head Coach Shena Hollar was named SAC Coach of the Year for the second time in her career. Hollar also picked up her 400th career victory as the Bears defeated Newberry in the first round of the 2008 Food Lion South Atlantic Conference Tournament.

LOS OSOS

HICKORY DICKORY HUCK III & SPRING SMOKEOUT

TWO MORE TROPHIES

Over two weekends in March and April, Los Osos retained their home streak, winning their third Hickory Dickory Huck, and picked up another at the Spring Smokeout in Guilford. HDH 3 was a wet, cold, and kind of icky affair, scrunched into the secondary soccer pitch. Los Osos were never really seriously threatened, having brought a squad of about 25 players, including many illustrious alums. The trophy was given to Anthony DeMalia, one of the original members, who was on his way to Florida to stay. At Guilford, Los Osos began by beating the hosts 13-1, and never looked back. It was the first tournament other than HDH won by our heroes.

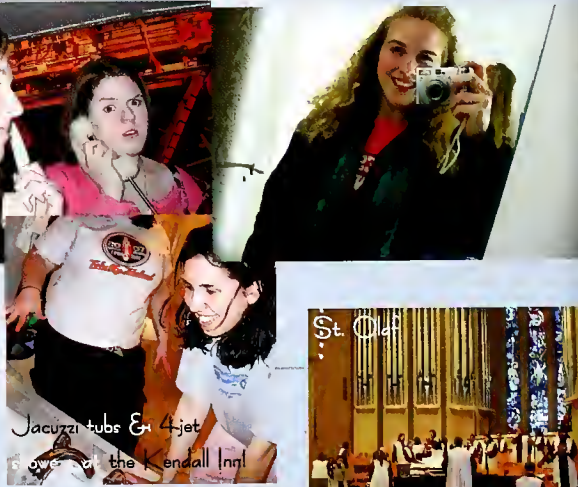

While most were breathing sighs of relief after mid-term exams last February, choir students packed up their suitcases and hopped on a bus that would lead them to places they'd only read about. During Spring Break 2008, they toured the Midwest in a week of fun that will never be forgotten.

Under the direction of Dr. Paul Weber, the A Cappella Choir performed a 2-hour program that centered around his new hymn, "Hill of Crosses." It was inspired by the choir's visit to Lithuania in May 2007. Every student brought along a handmade cross symbolizing suffering and hope; these were displayed at each venue.

While choir members maintained a schedule that included 10 full concerts, with up to 5 hours a day riding through the wilderness, and no mornings to sleep in, nobody was complaining! During the course of the week, they went up in the St. Louis Arch, sang in the famous Basilica of St. Louis, enjoyed a free day in Chicago to visit museums (or shop!), spent time at the Mall of America, toured St. Olaf College, occupied a 4-star hotel for free, and saw more snow than they ever thought possible!

Many, many choir members heralded the week as one of the best in their lives. As they sang, danced, laughed, ate, and shopped their way through the Midwest, bonds were formed that cannot easily be shaken. Fruit-racing, Michael Jackson, "a chance of hail" how much more fun can it get? To be certain, however, that the week was a rapturous one, look at the vast array of pictures! More than anything else, they tell the story.

LR Baseball 108

“Last season, Dan Ford and Hank Wofford had standout years, as Dan Ford was an Honorable Mention All-American, and Hank got the southern region gold glove. The past year was a tough, disappointing season, however, with the high point coming early in conference play when they swept Tusculum in the three game series here at LR. They hope to turn things around this season. Coach Knight is in his second year of leading team and the addition of ten signed players and returning more experienced players they are looking forward to a championship season in the spring. --submitted by Tyler Brown

The Lenoir-Rhyne Playmakers present...

The Diary of Adam & Eve

The two Eves wake up on the first morning of creation.

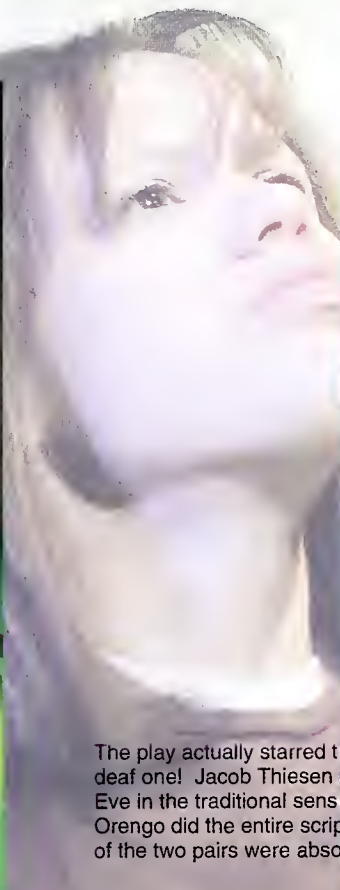

Actresses and crew review stage directions.

Searching for Eden: The Diaries of Adam and Eve, a comedic play by James Still, was presented on April 18-20. The first act featured two short stories by Mark Twain that humorously related the Biblical story of creation, while after intermission, time took its toll on Adam and Eve as the audience enjoyed their middle-aged dramatics. Upon returning to Eden, now a resort known simply as E, they attempted to capture the spark of their youthful romance. The play also had an added twist; Joe Dorsch '00, the recording technician for the college, composed an original music score. This is believed to be the first time an original score has been written for a Lenoir-Rhyne production!

Desiree Orengo

A joke throughout the production dealt with gender differences; Adam was miffed by the fact that Eve could talk so much and say nothing, while Eve thought Adam was a simpleton due to his lack of expression.

The play actually starred two couples: a hearing one and a deaf one! Jacob Thiesen and Klara Ledford played Adam and Eve in the traditional sense, while Bowe Aldridge and Desiree Orengo did the entire script in sign language! The movements of the two pairs were absolutely in sync!

Honors Convocation / Awards Ceremony

For the first time, Honors Convocation was held separately from an Awards Ceremony (above), which took place in the Belk Centrum. At the Honors Convo, the Faculty Scholar Award was presented to Dr. John Brzorad; The Roediger Distinguished Service Award was presented to Dr. Janet Painter; J.C. Epting received the Jeff L. Norris Non-Teaching Employee of the Year Award; Dr. Linda Johanson, professor of nursing, received the Raymond M. Bost Distinguished Professor Award. The Student Government Association Award was presented to Dr. John Brzorad; the SGA President's Award went to Dr. Lowell Ashman; and the Outstanding Student Organization Advisor award was presented to Dr. Jeff Wright. The Deaf Awareness Award went to Mia Self.

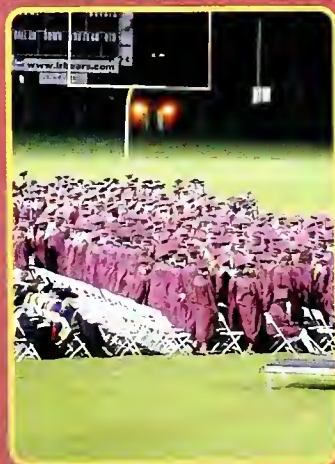

The Awards Ceremony was dedicated to numerous departmental and other student awards - much too numerous to list here.

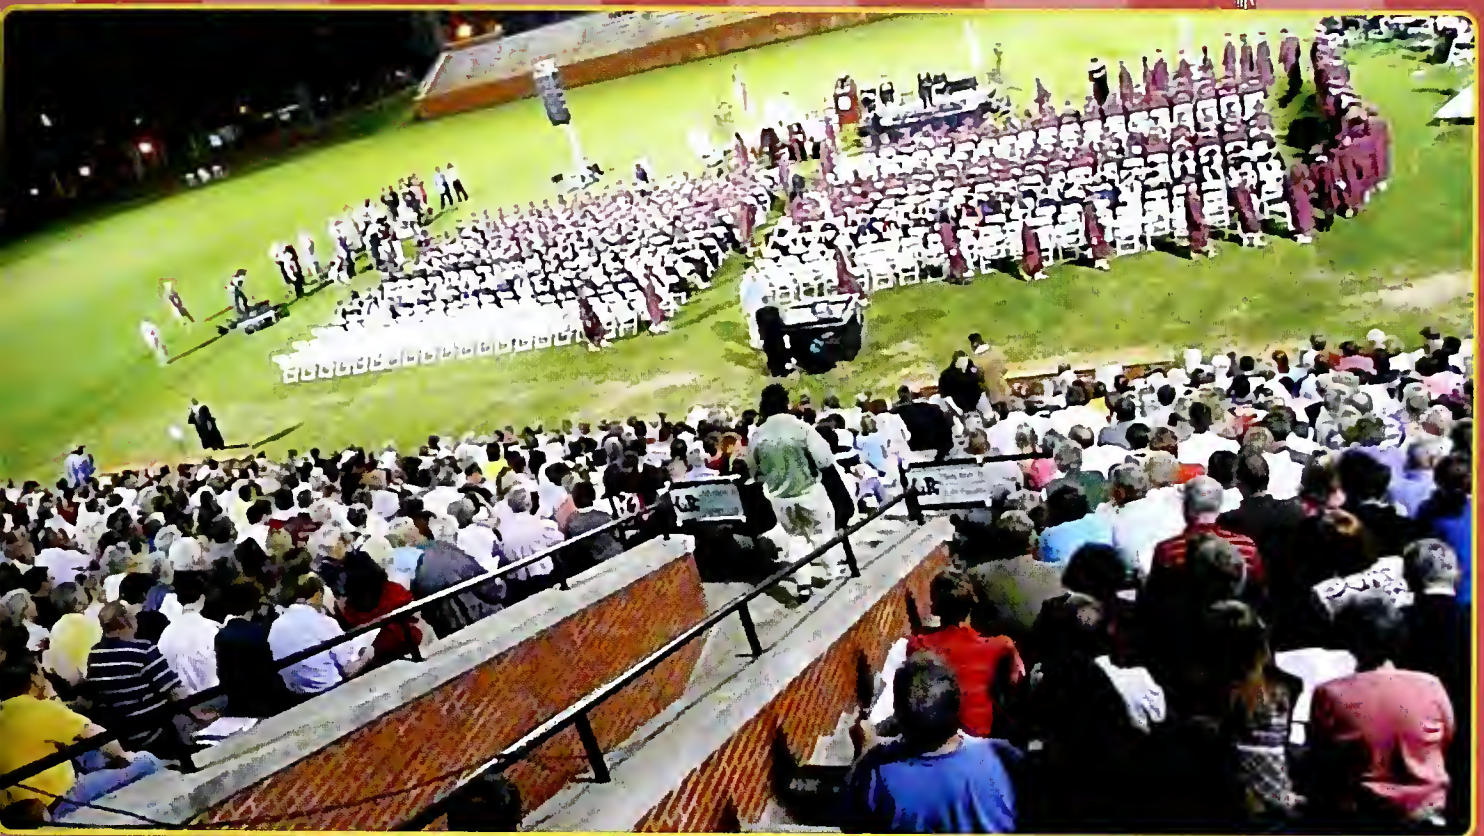

Baccalaureate

Dzr. Gerald S. Troutman of Newnan, Ga., was the baccalaureate speaker at Lenoir-Rhyne College. This service for graduates and their families was held at 2 p.m. Friday, May 9 in the P.E. Monroe Auditorium on campus. Troutman is a resource associate of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America's Fund for Leaders in Mission, a scholarship program for seminary students. He is a 1956 graduate of Lenoir-Rhyne College, and a former member of the L-R Bears football team

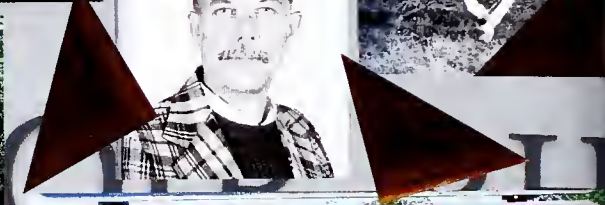

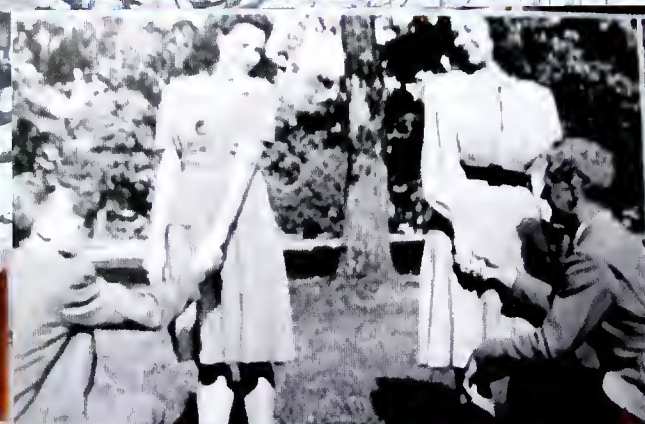

Commencement 2008

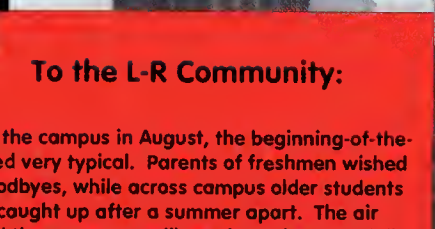

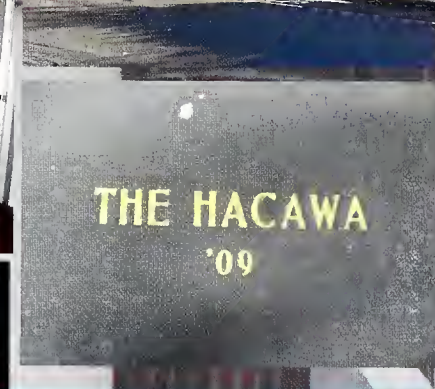

Commencement this year were held on May 9th at 8:00 in Moretz stadium - the first outdoor commencement since 2003. Dr. Wayne Powell addressed the graduates.

Rise up!

To the L-R Community:

When we stepped onto the campus in August, the beginning-of-the-year festivities appeared very typical. Parents of freshmen wished their dearests teary goodbyes, while across campus older students happily embraced and caught up after a summer apart. The air was hot and balmy, and the grass was still wet from the once-daily late summer rain when we all convened for a Movie on the Lawn. Certainly from the outset, this year presented all the markings of a normal year's happy beginning.

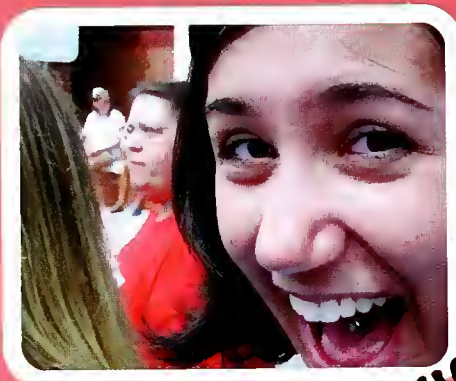

But paradoxically, fate decided that a normal year would be a tad bit too boring for us! A week later, the campus erupted into overjoyed chaos as we stepped into the new world of Lenoir-Rhyne University, taking a huge step up and exchanging our e-mail and mold problems for much faster technology and completely renovated residence halls. A collective adrenaline rush has supercharged everything we've done this year, and fortunately, a dedicated yearbook staff of 24 people (risen from 11 last year) has embraced the challenge of recording everything. Last year, in the HACAWA's 100th volume, we celebrated the past and present, so now, we are bringing you the best of the present and future. Make sure you check out future faculty (p. 210), superlatives (start on p. 174), Where's Weez (p. 230), and horoscopes (p. 237)!

One hundred years ago, on a May day much like this, students held their first HACAWAs, brimming with excitement as they traced their fingers across the gold engraving on the leather cover. Now, after 100 volumes of the College's HACAWA, we are closing the book on that era and bringing you the best of Lenoir-Rhyne University.

HANDS ON HICKORY

LENOIR-RHYNE UNIVERSITY

a big step (up)

Lenoir-Rhyne College officially gave way to Lenoir-Rhyne University on Saturday, Aug. 23, with a final vote of the Board of Trustees. A public ceremony followed on the steps of the McCrorie Ccenter. A large banner with the new university logo was uncovered as the announcement was made, and the new university seal on the podium was unveiled. Those speaking included Dr. Wayne Powell, university president; Charles Snipes, chair of the board; Robert Smitty Oakes, Student Government Association president; Rudy Wright, mayor of Hickory; and Hope Williams, president of the N.C. Independent Colleges and Universities. Dr. Andrew Weisner, college pastor, blessed the new university and offered a prayer. Mayor Wright presented Dr. Powell with a proclamation making Aug. 23 Lenoir-Rhyne University Day in Hickory.

Approximately 1,000 students, employees, alumni and community members attended the ceremony and celebration on Stasavich Place. Before the official announcement, Neill McGeachy, L-R athletic director, and Polly Bird, an active member of the Piedmont Educational Foundation/Bears Club, walked through the crowd, interviewing guests over the public address system. Students who attended were given ball caps embroidered with the new university logo. They could also sign a banner with the new logo printed on it and get temporary tattoos of the L-R logo.

"Things around the school seem about the same as before; the name change doesn't really affect me."

—Michelle Lackey

"LR feels like home, and the fact that it can reach this status is very appealing. I'm glad to see this direction of new growth and opportunity that it is headed in."

—Brandon Ostwalt

"I'm still not so sure that LR's ready to be a university yet. The school needs to fix basic problems like way-behind technology and see real growth in enrollment first."

—Bobby Ballard

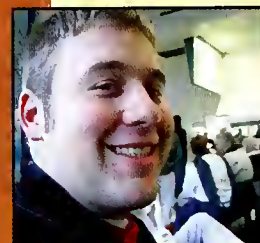

"This is a really exciting time in the history of LR, and I'm glad to be a part of it!"

—Whitney Tunnell

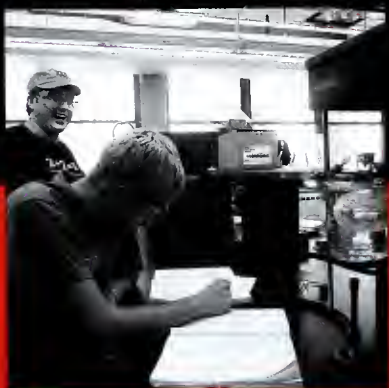

"This could possibly be a very positive change for LR as long as newer ideas and advancements come into place, and the students' best interests continue to be a prevalent part of administrative goals."

—Bradley Setzer

We remember

September 11, 2001

Pastor Weisner's sermon helped everyone to solemnly remember the day and honor the memories of the fallen Americans.

The weather said it all. Huddled together, lit only by the candles we held in our hands, we remembered those who lost their lives on September 11th, 2001. We remembered where we were, what we were doing, and how we wished we could've helped in some form or fashion. Yes, the weather said it all, for the sky was crying with us.

Marie Smith, Sarah Gladden, and Matt Cochran served as instrumentalists for the occasion.

Galway Kinnell

"What troubles me is the sense that so many things lovely and precious in our world seem to be dying out. Perhaps poetry will be the canary in the mine shaft warning us of what's to come."

-Galway Kinnell

Renowned poet, Galway Kinnell, served as the kick-off for the LRU Black Mountain College Celebration. His poetry has impacted many people in the world. He even opened with a piece he wrote to convince one of his students to not commit suicide. But not all his poetry started in such a noble way. "prayer", one of his more famous pieces, was written while he was listening to a particularly bad student presentation, and he was attempting to see how many is's he could fit in a line before it sounded bad.

Lenoir-Rhyne University presents.... The Spirit of

The campus of Lenoir-Rhyne was transformed into a hubbub of activity for artists everywhere when the university hosted "The Spirit of Black Mountain College," under the direction of Dr. Rand Brandes and Professor Mia Self. The celebration honored the impact that Black Mountain College (1933-57) had on the American avant garde movement of the 1950's-60's, bringing about revolutions in modern art and boasting figures such as Charles Olson, Jonathan Williams, Galway Kinnell, John Cage, Merce Cunningham, and many others who were either faculty members or students.

Now, on the 75th anniversary of the school, the Hickory community was given the chance to experience what BMC was really like. LRU music and theatre students were invited to participate in a retreat on the site of the old school, where they learned a great deal about modern art, and several performances during the weekend. Three jam-packed days of exhilarating performances by artists influenced by BMC, as well as LRU students, left spectators and participants alike exhausted, but greatly invigorated and inspired. A performance by the NC Dance Theatre and NC School of the Arts dance program wrapped up the weekend, leaving the Hickory community artistically fulfilled.

"I'm supposed to speak about loving my life as a writer, but I hate writing!" --Anna Quindlen

Anna Quindlen

Exclusive appearance at Lenoir Rhyne University: October 2, 2008

Anna Quindlen, a regular back-page columnist for Newsweek Magazine, visited LRU on October 2, 2008. She had a lively personality and spoke with vigor and enthusiasm, even if her opening remarks, printed above, were shocking to the crowd collected inside of P.E. Monroe Auditorium. Sophomore Leah Staton commented "I liked how she was open and honest with the crowd." She spoke of the realities of writing as well as the elation of getting published, which makes all that writing really worth it. After she spoke, the attendees were permitted to stay and watch the vice presidential debate with Quindlen, a self-proclaimed liberal. This was the opportunity of a lifetime for all attending.

Jonathan Kozol

This year, all the freshman seminar classes were eagerly awaiting the arrival of Jonathan Kozol. All their waiting was put to an end on November 6, 2008, when he came on campus to speak about his latest book, Letters to a Young School Teacher, this year's freshman read. The novel highlights 16 letters Kozol wrote to a new first grade teacher, working in inner city Boston. He has very strong views on the education system, some more blunt and ugly than others, but overall he wrote a book, not only for teachers, but for the larger audience. It was a wonderful read and quite a treat to have such a talented author in our midst!

HIDDEN TREASURES OF LENOIR-RHYNE

Beautiful Spots On Campus

Last year, we highlighted multi-generational Lenoir-Rhyne families in the HACAWA. It was wonderful to honor all of the past generations of loyal Bears, but this year, we're taking it a step further! With a focus on the present, we are incorporating new Bears who are bettering the campus with their current and future contributions! So many of our students and faculty members know the joy of having a relative on campus, whether it's a sibling to room with, a parent to bring that pair of shoes they left at home, a cousin to grow closer to, or a spouse to grab lunch with.

Legacies of the FUTURE

Christine Maack '07, who is a staff member, and Linda Maack, a senior, both belong to Sigma Kappa. They posed with penguins on a trip to Atlanta!

Kayla and Lucas Mitchell are a brother-sister pair. Kayla is a senior, and Lucas is a junior.

Kimi and Kari Jauch, are sophomore twins. They are originally from Minnesota! They are both on the yearbook staff and in the pep band.

Delisa and Danica Hickmon, juniors, are both in the Broyhill Leadership Institute.

Marcie and Katie Cody are junior twins, also in the Broyhill Institute.

Junior Mary Ellen Stephens and freshman Katherine Stephens are sisters, who are both members of Zeta Tau Alpha.

Faculty member Toni Oakes is the mother of Smitty Oakes, current SGA president.

Brothers Matt and David Cochran are from Ohio! Matt is a music student, involved in choirs and bands, while David runs track and cross country for LRU!

The Smith family is quite an LR bunch! Jessica St. Clair Smith '07 is married to Adrian Smith '08. Professor Robert Smith (alum) and Marie Smith, a sophomore, are current members of the LR campus. In addition, Ada Smith (alum) is the music director at St. Andrew's.

Kyle and Kent George are senior twins in Theta Chi. They both play on LRU's Golf team.

Clark Uhlenhopp is a freshman at LRU. His sister, Ingrid Uhlenhopp Anthony, is the wellness coordinator, and an adjunct professor.

Professor Florence Jowers and Dr. Paul Weber, who have been married for many years, run the sacred music program together.

Sarah and Caroline Gladden, both members of the A Cappella Choir and Zeta Tau Alpha, have been involved in LR as members of the Lenoir-Rhyne Youth Chorus for years. They're sisters; Sarah is a sophomore, and Caroline is a freshman.

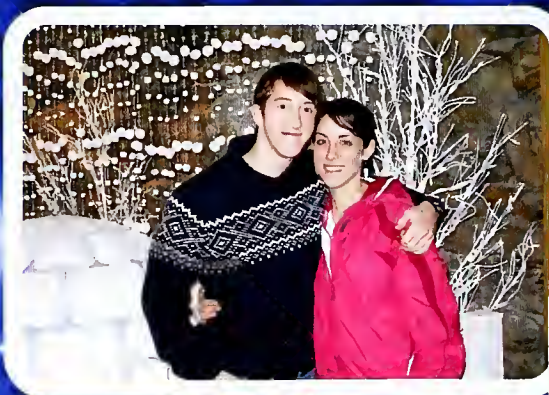

Marlys Kiser's father, Dr. Dan Kiser, is the chair of the department of fine arts.

We're gonna party like...

It's your BIRTHDAY!

VICKIE

Once a year, everybody observes that special date. Ingrained since childhood, they'd anticipate its return each year, counting down the days until they'd receive a toy train or a Barbie, with only a reasonably small chance of disappointment. Now, birthdays are often played down; nobody wears the birthday hat, brings cupcakes to class (well, a few do), or lives with the same ecstatic abandon. Rather, the sparkle remains, but manifests itself in different ways. Birthdays are an excellent excuse to get together with friends, splurge on a nice dinner, and pay a visit to the family at home. And of course, everybody checks those kind, thoughtful facebook messages, which are a touching testament to the love of friends, old and new...

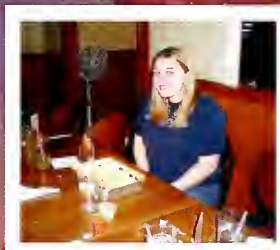

Sarah Weinbarger, September 28, is surprised with a cake!

Kathryn Gaither, October 7. Shelly Fearer, Laura Jones, Todd Dickerson, Kathryn Gaither, Natasha Fox, and Kim Hall. The party went to Olive Garden.

Today is...
December 10

Shelly Fearer, December 10. Shelly's friends surprised her with an early birthday party before leaving for Christmas break. To make it seem more natural, they put a sign up pretending it was December 10th.

Twins Katie and Marcie Cady (October 21) at home in Asheville.

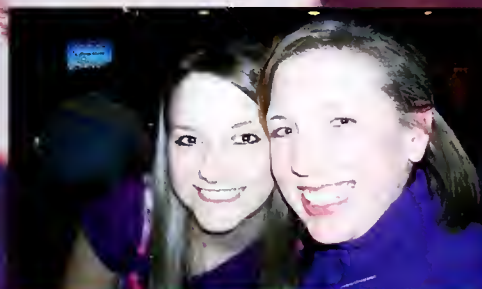

Amy Dellinger, November 17.

Ashley Parris, Amy Dellinger, Brandon Ostwalt, and Jason Miller were present for Amy's celebration.

Karah Estridge, August 22. Her party served as a way to welcome Kari Jauch, Megan Maner, and Kari Jauch, Jeremy Ard, Lydia Aurand, Shelly Fearer, Desirae Ball, and Karen Fletcher back to school!

Freaky Friday

In your 2009 HACAWA, we are striving to bring you visions of exactly what life is like today. Of course, some days are creepier than others...none quite so much as Friday, February 13. Some rather strange things occurred on campus, as well as off on this sunny, beautiful afternoon. Here, we provide the evidence.

Love can be a moment's madness;
Love can be insane.
Love can be a life of sadness and pain.

Love can be a snow-capped mountain,
Love can be the truth.
Love can be an endless fountain of youth.

It can be ecstasy, but it's true,
It doesn't always happen to you.

Love can be a sweet endeavor or a dirty shame.
Love is almost never ever the same.

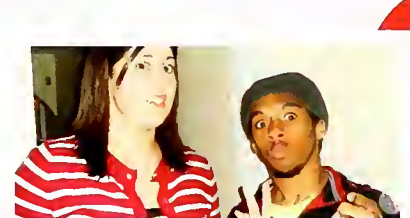

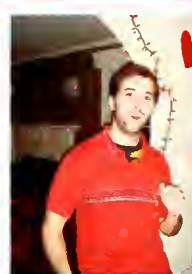

--Judy Garland

Friendship Awareness Day

Instead of being hopelessly disillusioned, unattached people attempted to wrangle something good out of the day reserved for happy couples. This year, the HACAWA encouraged this demographic to take advantage of Friendship Awareness Day, and focus on the wonderful love that they receive every day from devoted friends!

LRU Cheerleading

The Lenoir-Rhyne University Cheerleading 2008-2009 team consists of 18 women and 3 male cheerleaders. The team has worked hard this year to make a new name for itself and has succeeded in doing so with a bright new style.

The LRU Cheerleaders worked long and hard on many difficult stunts. After a few injuries, all of the stunts were perfected and performed for a wide-eyed crowd.

OUTDOOR TRACK 2008

MORETZ SPORTS COMPLEX

On February 6, 2007, Lenoir-Rhyne was endowed with a $5.1 million gift from two alums to go towards several new athletic facilities. The first phase has been completed, with an Olympic-level track that includes a pole-vaulting pit. There are only a handful of tracks this nice in the world...it's exactly the kind that was used in the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

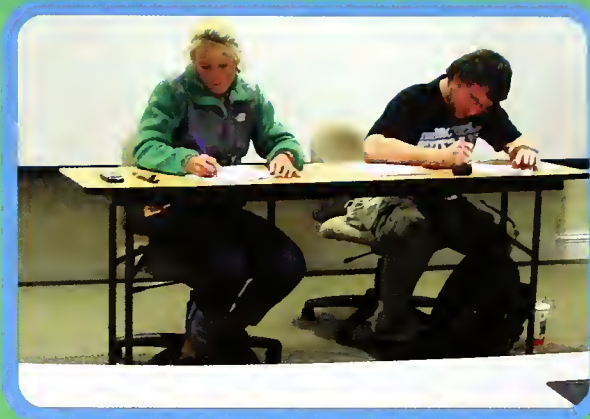

Last year's LLC residents endured quite a bit of loud construction (early in the morning!) during the first phases of transforming the old field to a state-of-the-art track, but they all agree now that it is magnificent! It's truly a service to the school and community; now, not just athletic teams, but anyone can utilize it. This $5.1 million gift is helping the Hickory community get in shape, one person at a time.

Over Valentine's Day Weekend, Catholic Campus Ministries attended a retreat sponsored by the Diocese of Charlotte Catholic Campus Ministers. "Give Your Heart Away." There, they joined in with 60-80 other college students from around the Diocese for a weekend of good food, fellowship and work projects. They chose to give hours of volunteer service at a homeless shelter, doing trail clearing in the woods, building a wheelchair ramp into someone's house, or listening to an elderly shut-in tell stories. The event actually took place in Hickory, though students from many universities attended. It was truly a way to express love to new friends and strangers alike.

The PanHellenic Council is a group of girls in the Greek system who are dedicated to doing things for not only their sorority, but for all sororities, as well as the whole Greek system. They help run spring recruitment, as well as planning activities such as Greek Week; a week of fun for the whole campus to be involved in. These dedicated girls make sure we all have fun not just within our sorority, but within our Greek community.

InterFraternity Senate

President - Wes King
 Vice- President - Aaron Burns

The InterFraternity Senate is responsible for orchestrating events for the fraternities at LRU. Each year they plan many events around campus. This year they totally re-did bid day, a raving success as you can tell from the picture on the left. They also work very closely with the PanHellenic council to plan events for the entire campus. The IFS is also a legislative body in charge of jurisdicating rush events and handling judicial issues.

Gamma Rho Chi's (Greek Recruitment Counselor) are volunteers from the four sororities on campus. As a group, it is their responsibility to guide potential new members smoothly through the process of recruitment. They disaffiliate from their sorority from fall until spring bid day, so to be as unbiased with potential new members as possible. They play the key role in recruitment. They are on the front line, constantly answering questions from interested girls, giving them an understanding of the Greek system, and letting them know just how great it is to GO GREEN!!

A Cappella Choir

73rd Concert Season

This is an exciting year for the A Cappella Choir! Not only did the choir go on its yearly tour (this time to Wilmington, Myrtle Beach, Charleston, and Charlotte) and participate in the Christmas at Lenoir Rhyne programs, but it also had the opportunity to perform a concert with the Western Piedmont Symphony. On this program the choir sang one of the great pieces of choral literature, Gabriel Fauré's Requiem as well as Charles Ives' Psalm 90 and other works. First semester, the choir had its normal director, Dr. Paul Weber, Director of Choral Activities at Lenoir-Rhyne. When he went on sabbatical second semester, however, the singers had the opportunity to perform with Maestro John Ross of the Western Piedmont Symphony.

Concert Band

Dr. Daniel Kiser challenged the band this year with selections by such composers as Charles Ives, Gioachino Rossini, Percy Grainger.

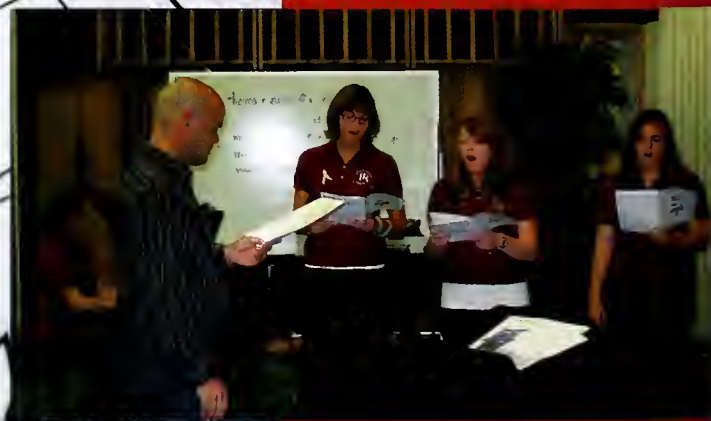

College Singers

The College Singers is Lenoir-Rhyland's most advanced vocal ensemble. Made up of leaders in the A Cappella Choir, they perform a variety of repertoire, ranging from madrigals to classical to vocal jazz. The College Singers supplies a section on the A Cappella Choir's home concerts as well as on tour. This year, they have performed at LRU Family Weekend and National Lutheran Youth Day, collaborated in a workshop setting with Vocalogy, a Los Angeles-based jazz group, and recorded tracks of Dr. Paul Weber's compositions. They are directed by Dr. Paul Weber and accompanied by Jeana Neal Borman.

Studio Voice

Front Row: Kimberly Hall, Kathryn Gaither, Scott Curtis, Alyssa Lowe, and Joana Borman.
Not pictured: Chelsie Probst

Judith Burbank's studio voice class is a small group comprised of music majors with an emphasis in vocal performance and other serious vocal students. A few come from majors as diverse as psychology, communications, and history! In this class, singers learn about expression and movement, while also having the valuable chance to perform for and receive feedback from their peers.

While singers work the whole year on perfecting songs and arias for student recitals and juries, the whole group performs together at least twice. In April 2008, Professor Burbank staged arias from the Mozart operas Le Nozze di Figaro, Don Giovanni, and Die Zauberflöte, and the students performed in character. In September, they performed John Cage's Variations IV in the Black Mountain College celebration; for this, they walked around for 15 minutes and did exactly what they felt like doing, whether it be performing vocalises or clucking like a chicken. The next big event for studio voice is a cabaret show that is planned for spring.

Students enjoy learning a wide variety of repertoire in a professional environment, but perhaps the occasions the class most looks forward to are when Professor Burbank has them over to her house for a delicious home-cooked meal!

Womens' ensemble

As the newest vocal ensemble, the Womens' Ensemble is doing quite well in its third year. The group was directed by Jim Gossler this year, since its normal director, Professor Florence Jowers, was out on sabbatical. However, the women didn't let a switch slow them down, as they performed at the Lenoir-Rhyne Festival for High School Singers, as well as Christmas at Lenoir-Rhyne. The women of the group know one thing is certain: they love the pleasure of singing with their peers in a smaller, more intimate, less time-demanding setting than other choral ensembles.

Collage in 4 Dimensions

As part of the Black Mountain College celebration, the Lenoir-Rhyne playmakers performed "Collage in 4 Dimensions," a multi-media work that was inspired by Black Mountain artists Josef and Anni Albers, Willem and Elaine de Kooning, Hazel Larson Archer, Robert Motherwell, and Emerson Woelffer. In this work, theatre students acted out small snippets of poetry while the verses were read aloud, sometimes resulting in very humorous scenes for the audience.

The Miracle Worker

"We have chosen to focus on the miracle of Helen's education in our production, and we hope that you find inspiration in this touching true-life story."

--Director's Note

Rae Hoover as Annie Sullivan tries to convince the Keller family, comprised of Linda Maack, Jacob Thiesen, Hannah Cloninger, and Koye Kidd, that Helen (Natalie Clater) should be disciplined.

What makes us human? William Gibson's Tony-winning play dramatically makes the case that language defines our humanity by naming objects by arbitrary signs.

While attempting to make Helen fold her napkin, Annie (Rae Hoover) will stop at no costs to make Helen (Natalie Clater) learn her lesson.

Director: Professor Mia Self

Before she leaves for the Keller residence, Annie Sullivan (Rae Hoover) receives gifts from her blind students at the almshouse. Her background there made her tough and stubborn, traits she needed in order to persevere against Helen's strong-willed tantrums.

In the 1880's, the Keller family had a peculiar problem: their daughter was both blind and deaf. In order for her to make any kind of progress in life, they hired Annie Sullivan, who transformed the life of this little girl by teaching signs.

Hannah Cloninger, Katelyn Crawford, and Coye Kidd

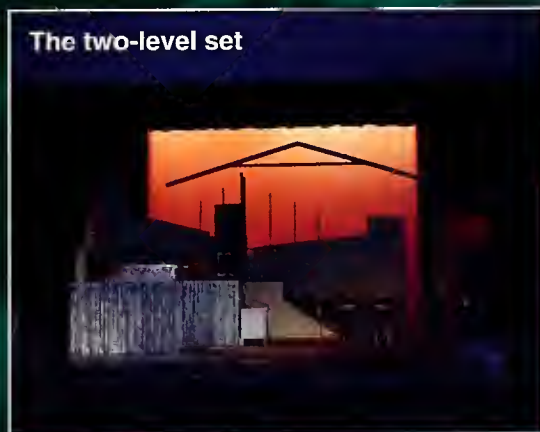

After her daughter correctly identifies water for the first time, Kate Keller (Linda Maack) embraces Helen (Natalie Crater).

LR students involved were: Brian Mulligan, Linda Maack, Hannah Cloninger, Jacob Thiesen, Rae Hoover, Dr. Paul Custer (professor), Leah Staton, Katelyn Crawford, Liz Lord, Joseph Dorsch (professor), Dan Kiser (professor), Stacy Brown, Halley Haithcock, Cares Pawley, and Dustin Wellman.

The East

Lenoir-Rhyne Playmakers
February 11-15, 2009

Written by John Cariani, a North Carolina native, Almost, Maine deals with romantic relationships that arise in the fictional town. "I fell in love with the play from the first reading because it so clearly captures how wickedly funny people are when falling in love," said director Mia Self. "From start to finish, this play captures the wonderful and awful faces of love in moments that are stunning, stupid, and deliciously silly." In honor of St. Valentine's Day, the cast hosted a three-course meal for night performances, while the Sunday matinee included coffee and desserts. Mmm! Audience members got to satisfy both their stomachs and desire for good theatre!

LRU'S

things that came and things that ...went

here's how all our cash was spent!

Coats with fur. These have been in for quite a long time now, and they aren't losing their appeal for students who want to keep warm!

Long, fitted coats. The classic overcoat is back in, this time in a more form-fitting variety that flatters every body type.

Curly or straight hair.

No more fighting nature! Neither the wild 80's curls nor the circa-2000 straight obsession prevails anymore, so girls can wear their hair stylishly in either way!

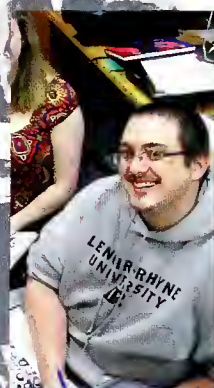

Tights and pantyhose. Once Cosmo said that leggings reminded them of either sausage or ten-year-old girls, the resurgence of pantyhose began. The things you dreaded when Mom made you wear them to church were chosen by quite a few girls this year. Very classy!

Hats... but maybe a little too strange!

Strange styles in eyewear (that ironically don't protect your eyes very much!) started making their way onto the shelves in popular stores. As for regular sunglasses, their common use was still going strong.

With Lehigh-Rhine's name change. It goes without saying that LRU merchandise became very popular, but conversely, LRU designs went on sale for half of their original price. Therefore, much larger number of students than usual showed off their LRU gear all year long!

SKINNY JEANS

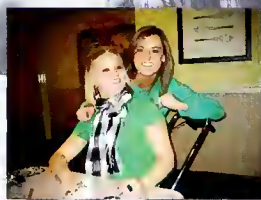

Skinny jeans.

Well, they don't have to be Michael-Jackson tight. However, the days of the Brady Bunch-esque flares, practically the only style sold a few years ago, are definitely over. Girls these days choose to wear slimming jeans that show off legs to their full advantage.

2008

Scarves Who ever thought they'd see Pastor Weisner on the fashion page? Well, scarves were probably the biggest fashion craze on LR's campus this year... absolutely everybody wore them!

Scarf Note LR students picked up their scarves with... everywhere and... in the... several hats... given.

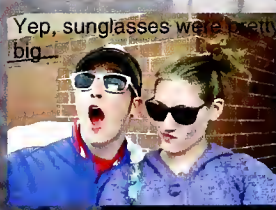

Flashy rain boots. Well, it rained enough this year, including the first week of both semesters. To keep dry, students relied on these snazzy rain boots, which became easier to find in the bigger stores.

Translucent tops.... draping materials... were popular... circa 1998 style... back in a classier... attractive way than... then. As long as... wore a camisole... looked wonderful!

Plaid is certainly not only for country bumpkins and rebels anymore! It's made quite a smash this year on LR's campus, with many options for different styles of dress.

Yep, sunglasses were pretty big.

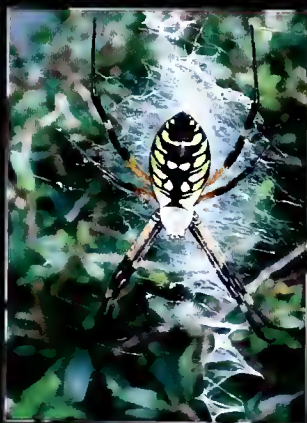

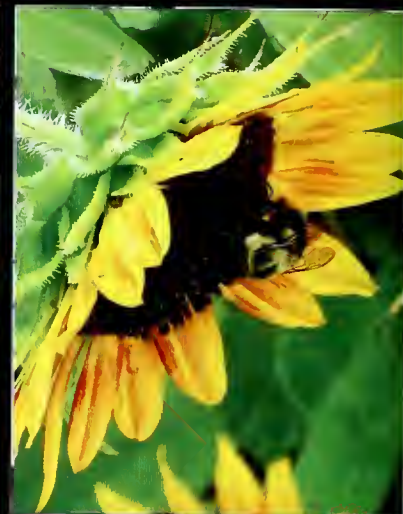

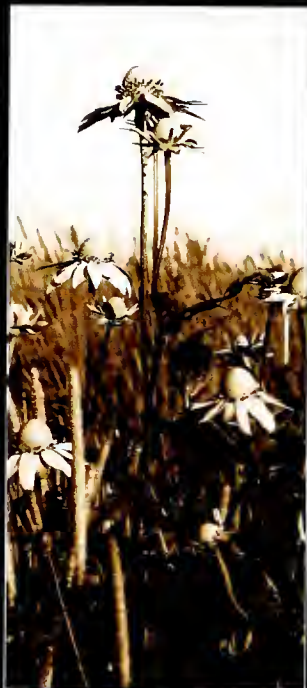

Are they holding true? Last Year's Picks and Pans:

Hot: Scarves, with an even wider variety of colors, patterns, lengths, widths, and thickness than last year. Hair, either natural or rolled. Sneakers, like the 1940's style we showed in last year's book. Leggings. Try finding a one-piece swimsuit in any popular store!... mmm... Headbands...not quite as popular, but still selling at Claire's. Leggings...still here, and definitely still acceptable, but just not as widespread. Crop tops...seen, but not that often. The ones with the buttons are especially last season, but still cute! Not: Tacky polos (still), crocs (thank goodness), showing stomach, and really, flip flops. People still wear them, but they're not as popular anymore as cute flats.

Photography

Art 205: Photography With Professor John Post

The main focus of this class is to give students a basic introduction to the equipment, materials, and techniques for producing good photographic prints, as well as the aesthetic concepts related to the art of photography.

Many of the pictures in this class are taken digitally; so as to give students an opportunity to explore the many possibilities available through digital editing through computer aided programs such as Photoshop. For those students who have further interest in the subject matter, dark room techniques are taught and honed through independent study.

Shall we who have toiled together keep these days in memories' store?
Or shall no thoughts ever thrill us of the days that are no more?
Need we pledge to one another,
or whisper, "forget-me-not?"
Rather let the birds cease singing,
Than should we say, "I forgot."

FACULTY

Last year, we revealed the way some of our teachers looked in the past. With the advanced technological equipment here at Lenoir-Rhyne, we have discovered a way to look into the future!

We have utilized this ability and have chosen to show you how select members of the Lenoir-Rhyne Staff and Faculty will look many years from today.

In Loving Memory of Dr. Forrest Rennick

May 16th 1947 - November 24th 2008

Minges Science Building is strangely silent these days. A genuine character is gone and the LR campus is permanently changed. Dr. Forrest Rennick's voice can no longer be heard, harassing and cajoling his students. More than one physics student was known to say that now they knew that Doc really cared about them: he yelled at them. Dr. Rennick, a tenured Professor of Physics at LR, died at the Nebraska Medical Center, Omaha, NE on November 24, 2008 from complications while awaiting a liver transplant.

Dr. Rennick was shaped by many influences. His Nebraska family raised him with love and nurture followed his birth on May 16, 1947. He loved both his dad and his mom. He would usually return home to Nebraska during the summer for visits, which were eagerly awaited by the family, because whatever was wrong, Jim would fix it. He usually spent those respites in the kitchen, helping his mother cook and fixing the things that had fallen into disrepair. He would return, reinvigorated to LR, ready for more battle.

His early academic career was not promising and due to his rather dismal academic performance he joined the Marine Corps, which sent him to Vietnam. While serving sentry duty he began to reflect on the loss of many buddies and his own misspent life to that point. He resolved that should he survive he would return to Hastings College and do better.

He survived. And he did do better, returning to Hastings College, getting good grades, and graduating in 1975. And he continued on, obtaining his Ph.D. in physics from New Mexico State University in Las Cruces, New Mexico, in 1982. He was irretrievably shaped by the crucible of Vietnam and by demanding professors at Hastings College who insisted that he would learn how to master physics the hard way, by doing it himself.

When Dr. Charles Cooke interviewed him for the Physics position at LR and asked him why he would want to teach in a small college like LR, he answered, "Because here I can teach physics like I was taught, encouraging my students to learn physics by doing it." And so he did. "Just do it," he would frequently cajole when students were apparently impossibly stymied by a thorny physics problem. And more times than not, the problem would be solved when the student just did it. Dr. Rennick was a hands-on physicist and we all counted on him to repair physics equipment, which we were always breaking. He conducted physics labs in a creative and explorative manner. He loved to serve as a chef for our physics parties and was proud of his wood workshop and the many pieces of furniture he assembled.

Perhaps the finest tribute is paid by the students who return year after year. "Where is Doc?" they ask, wanting to see him one more time. He loved them and they loved him, "curmudgeon" that he was. They miss him. Minges misses him. LR misses him.

Class got you down? Too busy on campus to breathe? Well there are plenty of spots to help alleviate that pain. Try the new Cub's Pub in Fitts-Connell or take a few stress-relieving laps on the new track. How about inviting your friends to your room to just chill? Wherever you live, no matter your major, residence halls provide a safe haven from the outside chaos.

Residence Halls

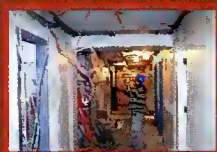

Fritz-Conrad

Renovated in only three months, it is the newest dorm on campus

enovated totally over the summer, Fritz-Conrad is the newest dorm on campus. It is an upperclassman dorm which this year housed three sororities as well as the freshman Teaching Fellows and other upperclassmen. Besides these residence hallways, this dorm underwent several upgrades which the whole campus can enjoy.

In the lobby area of the building there is a coffee shop and cafe as well as a large common area with couches and tables set to play card games. Also available are a foosball table and a pool table. Many students take advantage of the seating area and coffee and use this area for studying. One of the most exciting things in this dorm is the movie theatre which can be reserved by any student. There is also a computer lab downstairs for students in the building to use. Upstairs on the second and third floor are two large lobbies which all students in the building have access to. One lobby has a large flat screen TV and the other features a large built-in fire place. Each of these lobbies are used by students to gather and hang out or to study.

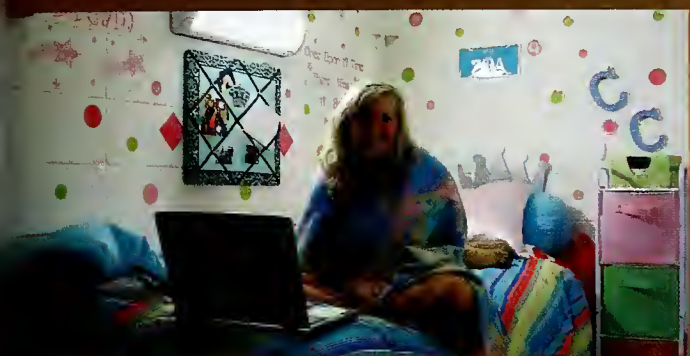

Construction was underway over the summer

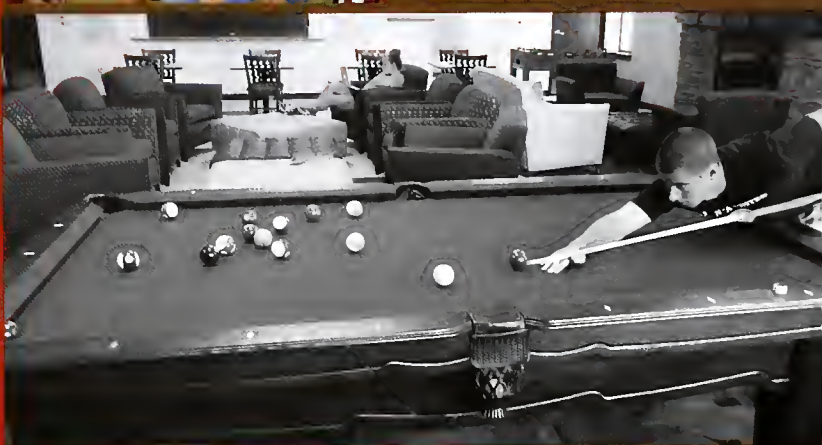

Construction workers keep a tally of the countdown as it gets closer and closer to the date students move back in. Expectations are running high!

The lobby is often used by students for studying and hanging out. These rooms are also used for social gatherings and large events.

RA's can be checked out from the RAs for students to enjoy the use of the pool table. Many students use this as an opportunity to engage in some friendly competition. This is one of the most popular activities in the lobby!!

Omega took place on the inside of Fritz-Conrad completely over the summer. The halls went from looking bare to fully furnished in just three months!!

Omega in front of the cafe are set up to play cards. Many students take advantage and spend their nights playing

WE LIKE IKE! AKA ISENHOUR!

For many people, choosing Isenhour came down to one reason... the bathrooms. Morgan Hall may be newer and, by some standards, a little nicer, but nothing beats having a bathroom in your room... especially when you wake up in the middle of the night and have to go! When you walk in the front door, you are usually met by the tempting smell of freshly baked cookies, usually courtesy of Kristen Kelly and Tonya Knupp. "Tonya and I made a lot of friends by making cookies, it is a great ice breaker. We made cookies for Kaleb's birthday, because a birthday away from home can be tough, and we thought that his favorite cookies would help." said Kristen. Also many times there would be "band practice" for the newly formed band "Corrupt Carnival" in the front lobby. Many students would also get together and just play music, games or talk.

Friendship

these are the moments that we are going to remember the most.

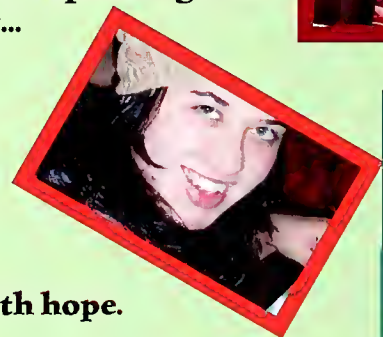

Seniors

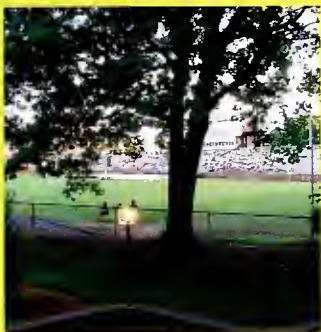

Who could ask for more?

The clock is counting down our time here.
Slowly, oh so slowly...
time runs out.
We must continue on...
but we never forget.
We always remember...
the time we shared here.
The good times...
and the bad times.
We shall forever cling to the memories...
the memories of these short years we've spent together.
These memories have helped us grow...
and oh how we have grown.
But the story must continue on... day by day, on and on.
We've found friendship,
and some of us found love.
Love that will last a lifetime.
So with this we continue on...
with thankful hearts always filled with hope.
What more could we ask for?

--Natasha Lynne Fox, Class of 2009

Seniors, looking for a job after graduation? Well, we told you that we'd peer into the future for you in this book, and uncover mysterious future events! Here's what's in store for you in May 2009, seniors and underclassmen alike! Dig in!

FUTURE

Taurus (April 21-May 21). Happy birthday! Looks good for you this month...be prepared for love at first sight! Also, you'll be getting a lot of birthday money. Careers: finance, architecture, wine trade, beauty.

Gemini (May 22-June 21). Looks like your charm will definitely help you find a job this summer. Watch out for backstabbers, however. Careers: international banking, media work.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Romance may be rocky mid-month, so friends will be invaluable for your happiness. Just read your HACAWA, and you'll be all right. Careers: teaching, fiction writing, flight attending, cooking.

Leo (July 23-August 23). Very good for you on the job front. In the first half of the month, you'll be very contemplative, while in the second half, you're very persuasive. Careers: fashion design, professional sports, theatre.

Virgo (August 24-September 22). Keep yourself motivated, and don't let stress engulf you. Listen to the advice of loved ones. Careers: police work, agriculture, medicine.

Libra (September 23-October 23). The stars insist that you relax and go on a vacation, preferably with loved ones! Have fun! Careers: law, agent, beauty trade, diplomacy.

Scorpio (October 24-November 22) There should be a lot of thought going into your next move, and make sure you really measure your risks. Careers: Mining and engineering, banking, wine trade, armed forces.

Sagittarius (November 23-December 21) You have won the prize for the best May! If you are now, someone will be fully in your grasp. A friend will help with a career move, and you'll also grow closer to your family. A general happiness will surround you all month. Careers: veterinary work, travel industry, publishing.

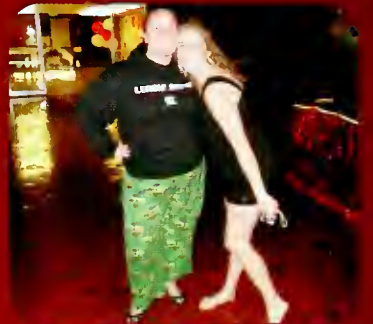

Capricorn (December 22-January 20) Senioritis will be gone, and your success will bring the attention of someone special. Careers: civil service, dentistry, property management.

Aquarius (January 21-February 18) Your charisma is irresistible, but if you want a commitment from somebody, you might have to give an ultimatum. Careers: science, the arts, teaching older students.

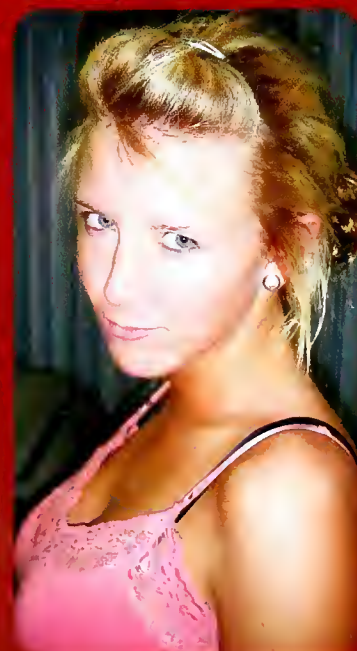

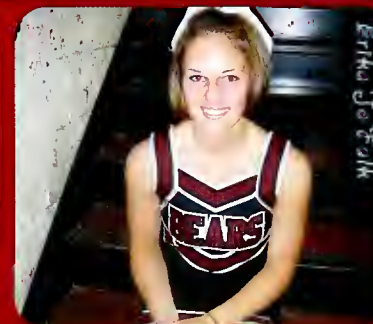

Pisces (February 19-March 20) Nostalgia will hit when relatives remind you of fond memories, but then, you'll be a leader at work. Careers: painting, prison work, plus trade.

Aries (March 21-April 20) Waa! You will solve all issues in your personal and professional life! Careers: motorizing, engineering, dentistry.

Congratulations, Class of 2009!

hacawa staff 2009

from the editor:

A year ago today, I hastily finished up the 2008 yearbook, listening to Judy at Carnegie Hall, sipping water out of a red cup, and feeling both very stressed and excited because in an hour, I was leaving on a choir tour (found on page 16 in this book). As I worked on the editor's page, I didn't know how monumental those last moments would turn out to be; only in April did I receive an e-mail that stated a name change was in the cards for our beloved Lenoir-Rhyne College.

It's funny how fast a year goes by. The trustees did indeed vote in August to make us Lenoir-Rhyne University, and almost immediately, the school whipped out t-shirts and signs; adults responded with the frenzied excitement of three-year-old ballet students in their first recital, after months of waiting for the big day. But what did all this change mean? Indeed, 2008-09 was an unusually exciting year...the first university homecoming, improved facilities, new uniforms for every school organization...but what we've always loved about Lenoir-Rhyne College hasn't changed. At homecoming, traditions rang true to their usual approach, but were performed with an added air of excitement. Maybe the residence halls were updated, but they aren't fifteen stories high...we still have that strong, overarching feeling of community. Classrooms are still small, and teachers still care about us. Perhaps our Editing and Design professor has new Pantone colors and school fonts to tell us about, but there are still seven students in our class, connected for years by academic standing and major.

Now, I'm sitting here in the same chair, listening to the same CD (without Judy Garland, I couldn't have produced the last two yearbooks!), sipping water out of a similar red cup, and feeling bittersweet that all the addictingly fun, but long hours of yearbook are almost over until next year. I have a trip coming up, but I'm not leaving in an hour...it's hard to believe, though, that my friends in the Class of 2009 will be walking across the stage a week after this book is released! Their time's been spent so wonderfully, among friends, doing things that they'll remember for a lifetime. With the confidence that an exceptional education brings, they'll soon make their way in the world, always looking back with love and fondness on their four years here.

The HACAWA staff has been absolutely outstanding this year:

Dr. Custer: You are the best advisor we could possibly have! You've taught us so much, and if it weren't for you, nobody in the school would believe that the yearbook is important. Now, look at this book; this is the fruit of your efforts, even the pages that you knew nothing about until today. Most importantly, we know that you'll always support us and you've got our backs, which we appreciate more than you'll ever know!

Christy: We did it, girl! This year has gone so smoothly, and a lot of it's been due to you! Thanks for everything you always do to take initiative and get things done. And by the way...you're the best BIC ever!

Chris: We've been spoiled this year! Now that I'm used to having you as visual editor, I wonder how on earth we got through last year without you! I knew I could depend on great photos, but what surprised me is how great you've been with pages, too, and planning for the future. I can't wait until you have your new camera next year! Thanks for helping absolutely everybody, and always being there in our times of need.

Elycia: For two years, you've been the person I knew I could count on to get things done quickly and well. And you've been so wonderful as an editor...look at the sports section! You should be really proud of what you've done, and it's a joy to have you on staff. You've got absolutely the perfect disposition for it!

Kimi and Kari: Okay. Yearbook + you = a perfect match. There just aren't words to describe how well you two have done this year. Not only have you completed your pages spectacularly, but you're always willing to go not just the extra mile, but the extra ten miles to get things done right. I look forward to training you to be editors in two years...you'll be great! Be thinking of some great ideas over the summer!

Laura: Hey, hey, hey, Miss Literary Editor! Haven't I said that two years in a row now? Well, I should let you write your own thank-you...your blurbs are like no other! I don't know what we'll do without you next year, because it's hard to write those laugh-out-loud statements that you're famous for. Remember what I said about kicking and screaming...I'm serious! You'll be coming, even if you're dragged "as a sheep."

Shelly: When I was thinking this summer about people who would be great on the yearbook staff, you were honestly the first person who came to mind. Since then, I'm happy to say that you've even exceeded my expectations. You've done more pages than anyone who isn't an editor, and they've been of exceptional quality and extreme difficulty. I can't wait to work with you again next year!

Dana: With your overly busy life, I'm so glad that you had a few minutes to join the yearbook staff! It was always such a relief to know that I had the visiting writers, as well as many pages on Greek life covered; just having you here to do a few pages helped a lot. Plus, your silliness always put a smile on my face!

Sarah, Marie, and Erika: I can't tell you how glad I am that my alto friends joined me on the yearbook staff this year! Anytime one of you had a page, I knew that you'd give it your all, and consequently, it would be done well. Thanks so much for taking deadlines so seriously that you even did pages before they were formally assigned! Sarah, your aunt was right; you girls are meant to do yearbook. The three of you are a breath of fresh air, and you can know that this yearbook is much better with you on it!

Leslie and Jennifer: You can't imagine how excited I was when I saw how well each of you had done your pages, especially since your schedules prevented you from attending meetings! Thanks for stepping up and doing a great job with both photography and layout...and basically teaching yourselves how to use the website. You're very reliable, and you should be very proud of the great job you've done!

Andrew, Justin, and Chase: Yay for the yearbook guys! You three have been fantastic: always helpful, and always present at meetings and events. I definitely notice how hard you try, and really appreciate it.

Robby, Tonys, Nicole, Kimberly, Randi, Erica, and Cat: Thanks for taking on pages, always meeting deadlines, and trying your hardest. Thanks again to everyone on the HACAWA staff; having this many people involved makes a huge difference!

The 2009 HACAWA was published by Jostens Publishing Company in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Jostens' Yearbook Avenue interface was used for layout. Bill Hall served as our publishing representative. Individual student, faculty, and staff photographs were taken by Carolina Photography. Phil Robinson of SportsFotos contributed many of the athletic photos. Other photography was done by Christopher Wilson, Paul Custer, Kathryn Gaither, Justin Hawkins, Margaret Allen, Kimi and Kari Jauch, and others. Paul Custer designed the cover, and Bill Hall, Christy Coates, and Kathryn Gaither designed the grain. The primary font used in this book was Helvetica.
